In Spring 2013, Thornbury's Rossmoyne Street came to life with the addition of forty scarecrows, all home-made creations by the street's residents and, wherever possible, made from recycled or unwanted materials. The scarecrows were great conversation starters for neighbours and passers-by. More people were walking and riding along the street, and drivers slowed down so passengers had a chance to spot the scarecrows and get a better look! Rossmoyne Street was less like a traffic corridor and more like a living space with lots of colourful characters to talk about! There were recognisable characters, such as Darth Vader, Princess Lea, Bananas in Pajamas and Dr Who; and many other creative characters from fairies, farmers, goths and bunnies, to glamorous ladies, dapper gents, footy players, tradesmen and ninjas.

This calendar is a souvenir of the inaugural Rossmoyne Street Scarecrow Competition and a tribute to everyone who took part. Unfortunately, we could only include a small selection of the wonderful scarecrows: there are only 12 months in a year and we didn't have suitable high resolution images of all of the scarecrows.
